the department for international development is coordinating the uk s response to the outbreak of ebola in west africa the international community was very slow to recognise the seriousness of the outbreak of ebola in west africa and the department failed to respond with sufficient urgency to an emerging crisis which could have been contained had action been taken sooner there are promising signs that the department s interventions are having a tangible impact although there remains uncertainty over the future trajectory of the outbreak once the outbreak has been contained the department needs to review whether its current preparedness and protocols when faced with a potential international medical emergency are adequate for effective prevention and response future efforts must be directed to bolstering health care systems in the region and to supporting governments to ensure that these are sufficiently robust there is no scientific justification for the uk government s decision to prevent direct flights to the affected region from the uk something which has likely increased the cost and difficulty of dealing with the outbreak these should be restored as soon as possible the uk government has committed a package of direct support of at least 230 million to help contain control and treat ebola in west africa the department is distributing this money to other departments such as the ministry of defence international institutions and non governmental organisations the uk package focuses predominantly on sierra leone and includes support for the construction of treatment facilities the provision of over 700 treatment beds and the training and management of burial teams the 2014â 2015 ebola epidemic in western africa was the longest and most deadly ebola epidemic in history resulting in 28 616 cases and 11 310 deaths in guinea liberia and sierra leone the ebola virus has been known since 1976 when two separate outbreaks were identified in the democratic republic of congo then zaire and south sudan then sudan however because all ebola outbreaks prior to that in west africa in 2014â 2015 were relatively isolated and of short duration little was known about how to best manage patients to improve survival and there were no approved therapeutics or vaccines when the world health organization declared the 2014 2015 epidemic a public health emergency of international concern in august 2014 several teams began conducting formal clinical trials in the ebola affected countries during the outbreak integrating clinical research into epidemic response the ebola experience assesses the value of the clinical trials held during the 2014â

2015 epidemic and makes recommendations about how the conduct of trials could be improved in the context of a future international emerging or re emerging infectious disease events
